

What's New? An insight from Leatherhead

In association with Leatherhead
Food Research

Mia Naprta, Market Analyst and Hazel Lee, Product Development Scientist wish you a happy St. Valentine's Day - reviewing a few great chocolates to share or to keep entirely for yourself!

1. Would you be my Valentine?

The Lindt HELLO Just For You Heart Chocolate Tin (45g) might be a perfect chocolate gift for that someone special or even a great little treat for yourself this St. Valentine's day! Each heart shaped tin contains 10 delicious melt-in-your-mouth Lindt milk chocolates wrapped in heart themed tinfoil.

2. Pinks and reds

These pink and red chocolate hearts from Rita Farhi might be another great choice this month. Inside the pretty shimmering foil, you will find mouth-watering chocolate milk praline that's "sure to set hearts a flutter".

3. Love Bites

The Limited Edition Askinosie Love Bites jar contains an assortment of miniature, individually-wrapped single origin dark craft chocolate bars using cacao beans from Ecuador, Honduras, Tanzania and Philipines.

4. 650g of love

For all those who want to make a statement, Hotel Chocolat's stunning Lovebirds heart of solid caramel chocolate with a pinch of salt and 50% milk praline with crispy feuilletine might be the right choice. It weighs 650g and retails at £26 in the UK. To quote HC: "It's the only heart you'll ever want to break!"

5. More than just chilli

This Green & Black's Spiced chilli dark chocolate features six aromatic spices in addition to chilli. Selridges describes it as a fusion of intense flavours for a warm burst of heat. The pink pepper and juniper berries enhance the fruity notes in the spices, whilst chilli provides warmth. Thanks to its red packaging, this chocolate could also a more subtle Valentine's gift choice.

6. Dark and exotic

The exotic new Doisy & Dam superfood bar is handmade using organic chocolate and powerful superfoods: sweet coconut and naturally caramel-flavoured lucuma. The bar is said to be silky smooth, dark and light at the same time.

See more new products from Leatherhead next month. ■